

My name is Kelly D'Alessandro, or Mrs. D as the students affectionately call me. I am the Technology and Media Services Teacher here at ASCA. Additionally, I teach STEM to grades 5-8. I have been teaching in the Albany Catholic diocese since September of 2001 and at ASCA since September of 2009. I am an alumnus of The College of Saint Rose. I am very blessed to have the ability to teach your children here at All Saints!

I have been married since 1993 and have 2 adult daughters, Katie and Gabrielle. Katie graduated college this past May is attending graduate school in CT where she plans on becoming the 3rd generation of D'Alessandro women to be a teacher. She has volunteered here at ASCA in the past. Her love of our school strengthened her desire to become a teacher. My other daughter Gabrielle is a junior at Siena and exploring post-graduation options.

Outside of education, animals and animal rescue is a passion of mine. I am the proud mommy to 4 cats currently and many other furbabies up in Heaven. I have also been a volunteer with rescue since 2012 and am the current President and volunteer coordinator of a local nonprofit all volunteer run cat rescue. I train new volunteers for our adoption clinics as well, so even in my spare time, I teach!
