

Asbestos Compliance Letter for Parents

Federal regulations require all school buildings to be inspected for asbestos-containing building materials [ACBM], since asbestos was a construction material used in the past. This school building has been inspected and any ACBM has been identified in a report call the Asbestos Management Plan. As a part of the governing federal regulation, parents must be informed that this inspection has been made. Its results are available for review in the Principal's Office. Our Office would like to assure you that there is no imminent danger or unhealthy condition threatening the lives of our school children. We are further required to maintain a periodic surveillance of all ACBM in the school building and take corrective actions if a hazard does occur. Because of our compliance with federal and state regulations, the exposure to a hazardous condition has been effectively minimized for all occupants of this building.

For more details on the Asbestos Management Plan for this building, contact the School Principal.

Asbestos Compliance Letter for Employees

Federal regulations require all school buildings to be inspected for asbestos-containing building materials [ACBM], since asbestos was a construction material used in the past. This school building has been inspected and any ACBM has been identified in a report call the Asbestos Management Plan. As a part of the governing federal regulation, employees must be informed that this inspection has been made. Its results are available for review in the Principal's Office. Our Office would like to assure you that there is no imminent danger or unhealthy condition threatening the lives of our school children. We are further required to maintain a periodic surveillance of all ACBM in the school building and take corrective actions if a hazard does occur. Because of our compliance with federal and state regulations, the exposure to a hazardous condition has been effectively minimized for all occupants of this building.

For more details on the Asbestos Management Plan for this building, contact the School Principal.